Description of Services:

The Full Circle program is a residential treatment program for 18 and older pregnant and parenting females, and their dependent children, who are struggling with drinking and/or taking drugs and lack the ability to abstain from drinking or taking drugs.

This program provides coordinated substance abuse intervention and treatment, health care, and supportive services to pregnant and/or parenting women.

The program consists of three phases:

Phase One is a medically monitored inpatient chemical dependency treatment program which typically lasts about 6 weeks. In this phase, the clients learn how drug and alcohol use affects them and their children. They also learn new ways of coping with life, relating to others and self, and how to acquire the tools they need to aid them in living a recovery oriented lifestyle.

Phase Two is the Clinically Managed Residential Phase of the program. This phase is designed to provide women with a safe, secure, and structured place to stay before and after the baby is born. During this phase, case managers assist the client in obtaining housing and becoming involved in educational, vocational, and parenting programs. Clients are encouraged to utilize the group home styled facilities for three months post birth.

In Phase Three, Full Circle offers case management services upon a client's discharge from Phase 2. These services include continued provision of support groups and counseling, as well as, vocational, childcare, educational, and support services in the community.

Clients can be referred to this facility by Law Enforcement, Social Services, Human Services, Tribal Entities, Physicians, Attorneys, and family members.

Services Provided: Residential Treatment Program

Description of Services:

The New Start Program is a residential treatment program for 18 and older pregnant and parenting females and their dependent children who are struggling with chemical dependency. These programs provide coordinated substance abuse intervention and treatment, health care, and supportive services to pregnant and/or parenting women.

The goals of the New Start are for participants to develop a recovery based lifestyle, make a successful transition into dependent living arrangements, be quality parents to their children, and avoid long term dependency on the social services system. The program consists of 2 phases.

Phase One is medically monitored inpatient chemical dependency treatment, lasting approximately six weeks long. In this phase, the clients learn how drug and alcohol use affects them and their children, learn new ways of coping with life and relating to others and self, and acquire the tools they need to aid them in living a recovery based lifestyle.

Phase Two is the Clinically Managed Residential Phase of the program. This phase is designed to provide women with a safe, secure, and structured place to stay before and the baby is born. Case managers will help the client obtain housing and become involved in education, vocational programs, and parenting classes among other services. Residents are encouraged to utilize the group home styled facilities for three months post birth.

Women can be referred to this facility by Law Enforcement, Social Services, Human Services, Tribal Entities, and members the private sector, (physicians, attorneys, and family members).
